Collaborative School Project Meets With Andover Opposition

By Lewis C. Howe

The proposed Andover/Lawrence Collaborative School isn't being welcomed by some residents of Andover, who doubt the project's feasibility and fear the regional K-8 facility will detract from the town's public school system.

"There is an attitude among some Andover parents that they don't want their kids mixing with Lawrence," said Ellen Glasheen, a teacher at the Shawsheen Early Childhood Center and a member of the Collaborative School Project. Project spokeswoman Ginny Lane commented, "there were five or six very vocal people at our public hearings that didn't want their kids in with Lawrence kids. We expected some of that."

One parent opposed to the 1,200-student experimental school is John Dziadul of Acropolis Circle. "People move to Andover in part because of the reputation of its school system. Why enact a dramatic change?" Most people, Dziadul stated, "want strong neighborhood schools. You can't create strong neighborhood schools by diverting money and resources to a collaborative school."

Dziadul, who has a child currently in the early childhood center, said the proposed regional school would be "too large" with an enrollment of 1,200 students, 400 of whom would be volunteers from Andover schools.

"I cannot believe there are 400 people in Andover who will volunteer their kids to a collaborative school with a population of 1,200 when they have a local school like South elementary with a population of 220 kids," he remarked. "If they don't get the volunteers, then what?" Dziadul said, expressing concern that students could be placed in the collaborative school involuntarily. The Andover parent added he does not wish to see the collaborative school used as a simple means of relieving overcrowding in the town's schools.

"What you have is a major commitment by the local educational community to getting the program done, even if the community doesn't support it," Dziadul commented.

It is difficult to tell whether the communities support the school, as only a handful of residents showed up at public hearings on the project. Monday night's presentation at the Frost School in Lawrence drew only 17 interested observers, not counting the media and the nine committee members who attended. This, Dziadul said, indicates "a staggering lack of knowledge about the school itself. Given this apathy" he continued, "I fear something this major could happen without anyone noticing."

At Monday's meeting, members of the project Task Force gave brief presentations concerning all aspects of the proposed school. Dennis Richards, project director, stressed the student and teacher population would be strictly voluntary, and if Andover failed to respond to the idea, he would seek volunteers from other surrounding communities, such as North Andover or Methuen.

Jim Sweeney spoke on the concept of "collaboration," which he defined as "people with a similar mission combining their talents for a worthwhile goal." Sweeney urged parents from both communities to become involved with the school, which is designed to showcase the latest in educational programs and methods for the benefit of both students and teachers.

Maureen Saccatini explained the site selection process. Current plans call for the Collaborative school to be situated on a 26-acre parcel off Beacon St. in Andover. There are wetlands and traffic considerations, she said, but the site thus far appears to be satisfactory for the proposed facility.

Joan Green addressed the audience on the issue of student selection for the school. "This is an equal educational opportunity project," Green commented. "A chance for us to foster racial, social and economic integration." There would be no requirement for students to enroll, she remarked, "except a willingness to learn."

The school should be all-volunteer, Green added, because in a school with a philosophy of collaborative education, "everyone should want to be there." Green acknowledged it "would be idealistic to expect the school to be filled when it opens" because "students in grades 7 and 8 would be reluctant to leave their peers for a year or two."

By concentrating on establishing a "cluster" of students at the younger grade levels first, Green noted, "we can establish the school's future." Richards said the school will "actively recruit volunteers" to ensure the project's success.

At this point, one resident in the back of the hall asked "what's in it for Andover?" Richards responded, "it will have excellent curriculum."

"Will it be better than our already excellent curriculum in Andover now?" the gentleman inquired.

"Yes, it will," Richards answered.

One reason educators support the project is the potential for new advances in education. Linea Gershenberg, principal of the Shawsheen center, said the school represents "the excitement of putting all your dreams to work." An advanced arts program, new plans for bilingual education, and unprecedented opportunities for staff development were among Gershenberg's reasons for supporting the collaborative school.

Gershenberg said teachers' salaries at the proposed school would be "higher than in either Andover or Lawrence." In addition to serving to entice volunteers, this wage scale will reflect "longer working hours and increased responsibilities" for educators at the facility.

To Speak At PA Symposium

William Lockeretz

Tufts Research Associate Professor William Lockeretz will speak to faculty and students at Phillips Academy on "Making American Agriculture Environmentally Sustainable" on Wednesday, Nov. 4, in Kemper Auditorium at 6:45 p.m. as part of the 1987 Headmaster's Symposium entitled "Environmental Issue."

Lockeretz, a researcher concerned with environmental and resource issues in agriculture, is principal investigator of a project entitled "Metropolitan Food System." This project is examining ways by which farmers close to metropolitan areas in Massachusetts can establish stronger links with urban consumers and improve their prospects for remaining in farming in the face of development pressures. He has also done research on commercial organic farming and renewable fuels from agricultural materials such as vegetable oils and crop residues.

A graduate of Harvard University for an A.M. and a Ph.D. in physics, Lockeretz has served as a research associate for the Center for the Biology of Natural Systems at Washington University in St. Louis and as a senior agricultural scientist at the Northeast Solar Energy Center in Boston. The public is invited free of charge.

Joins National Board On Teaching Standards

Susan McIntosh Lloyd, an instructor of history and music at Phillips Academy in Andover, has been elected by the National Board of Professional Teaching Standards as one of 34 new members to join 29 others on the board. She is the only Massachusetts teacher and the only independent school teacher in the new group.

The national board, which will eventually offer professional certification to America's teachers, was a cornerstone recommendation of the Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy's 1986 report "A Nation Prepared: Teachers for the 21st Century." The report presented a framework for addressing many of the pressing issues in American education: to restructure schools, reform teacher education, establish fair and rigorous professional standards, address the shortage of minority teachers, change teacher compensation practices and initiate new systems of accountability.

Lloyd created PA's Urban Studies Institute, an intensive one-term program which uses neighboring Lawrence as a fieldwork and research site and involves students from Phillips and Lawrence High School. At the academy's Bicentennial, Lloyd authored "A Singular School, Abbot Academy 1828-1973," a definitive history of the school which merged with Phillips Academy in 1973 to create today's coeducational Andover. Yale University Press has recently published her second book, "The Putney School: A Progressive Experiment."

Lloyd chaired the Headmaster's Symposium in 1984-85 focusing on the United States' relations with Latin America. The following year she directed urban studies research which produced an unprecedented report entitled "Growing up Hispanic in Lawrence, Massachusetts."

Lloyd is a violist, a former dean of Pine Knoll Cluster and the conductor of Fidelio, a 15-member capella madrigal singing group begun at Abbot Academy in 1887. During the summer she moves to the farm she and her husband, an instructor in the art department, have cleared for sheep-raising out of a stretch of Vermont hillside.

Halloween Dance Set For Elks

The Andover Lodge of Elks will hold its annual Halloween Dance on Saturday, Oct. 31, at the Elks Lodge, 400 South Main St., from 8 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. A hot and cold buffet will be served. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. Costumes are optional.

Photographic Conference

Andover residents Arno Minkinen and Siegfried Halus are coordinating the Regional Conference of the Society for Photographic Education, which will be held Halloween weekend, Oct. 30 and 31 and Nov. 1, at the University of Lowell.

Minkinen is an associate professor of art at ULowell, and Halus is head of the photography department at Tufts University, which is co-sponsoring the event.

Lodging and meeting facilities for the conference will be at the Lowell Hilton. Saturday evening's keynote address will be given on ULowell's south campus.

The highlight of this year's conference will be an exhibition called "Work from Two Decades." To be held in the restored upstairs gallery of the Pollard Library at City Hall, the exhibition will contrast the work done in the 1970s by approximately 50 New England photographers with work they are doing today.

"Work from Two Decades" will not only attempt to survey the contrasts between the '70s and '80s in the work of each photographer, but also to reflect on the changing attitudes toward the medium. To encourage a grassroots representation by the regional SPE membership in the exhibition, a panel of seven jurors will be selected from the various photographic localities in the region: New York State, New York City, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire and Vermont.

At one time almost anything written, even a list, was called a book.

McKeigue Appointed Director

Dr. Joseph E. McKeigue of Jamaica Plain, principal of the Lincoln School in Brookline, has been named director of the Massachusetts Department of Education's Northeast Regional Education Center.

He succeeds Katherine Best who retired in September.

The northeast center in North Reading is one of six education centers staffed by department of education employees to provide services to local school systems around the state.

Education Commissioner Harold Reynolds Jr. said McKeigue's appointment "brings a wealth of experience to this important post."

He said McKeigue, who was selected from a field of 60 candidates, will assume his new post in mid-November.

McKeigue was previously principal of the Hemeway School in Boston.

He also served as an advisor to members of the Boston School Committee and was an administration and management specialist providing technical assistance to desegregating and desegregated school districts in New York and New Jersey, under a federal program administered by Teachers' College at Columbia University.

McKeigue has been an administrative assistant at the Rhode Island Department of Education and taught at the John McCormack Middle School in Boston.

He earned a bachelor's degree at Trinity College and a doctorate, M.A. and M.Ed. degrees at Columbia University. He also holds a master's degree in elementary education from the University of Chicago.

Work, Family Report Issued By Association

A report, "Work and Family," issued by the Family Service Association of Greater Lawrence predicts growing conflict between family and workplace values. The report, published by Family Service America, cites numerous changes in work and the workplace that are seen as detrimental to communities and family life.

The author, R. Morton Darrow, Ph.D., futurist and former insurance industry analyst, sees the emphasis on profit-making in a competitive global economy as having adverse effects on corporate social responsibility, job creation, employee loyalty and responsiveness to changing family needs. Darrow also predicts a decline in living standards for the middle class.

Kay Frishman, executive director of the Family Service Association of Greater Lawrence, notes that the results of the report focussing on minority group members and single parents are particularly relevant to the Lawrence community.

"Being successful out in the workplace and maintaining a stable homelife and family-life become more difficult, and create more stress, when people feel set apart or somehow different than so-called 'typical' families. What corporations and businesses have to realize is that there are different kinds of families in today's world," she says.

Family Service Association of Greater Lawrence, a United Fund agency, offers counseling and other services to treat family and individual problems. It is an accredited member of Family Service America, the national organization of 290 family service agencies in the United States and Canada.

Copies of "Work and Family" may be ordered from Family Service America, Publications Department, 11700 West Lake Park Drive, Milwaukee, Wisc. 53224. Order forms are available through the Family Service Association of Greater Lawrence, 430 North Canal St., Lawrence.

Awarded Accreditation

The Bon Secours Hospital medical laboratory in Methuen has been granted accreditation by the College of American Pathologists (CAP), according to William L. Lane, president/chief executive officer.

Robert J. Cross, M.D., director of laboratories, explained, "The CAP's inspection and accreditation procedures are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a medical laboratory to be accredited, but like many others, our facility has sought accreditation because it represents a level of professionalism and medical expertise that meets and exceeds government regulations."

The CAP Commission congratulated Bon Secours on achieving accreditation of the laboratory under Cross' direction and for its excellence in services provided. The commission is comprised of a panel of experts in the field who review and set accreditation standards for medical laboratories all across the United States.

A Sample Samaritan Center Log

Editor's note: This log was written by one of the 60 volunteers at the Samaritan center in Lawrence.

The nightly news ends and the Merrimack Valley says goodnight with Chet and Nat.

At the Samaritan center, the shifts change and we prepare for the long nine-hour stretch.

11:30 p.m. We settle in, emergency numbers and snacks at the ready. Flashing phones interrupt our small talk and we give our attention to the urgency of the first calls: a person struggles with feelings of guilt; a friend worries about a suicidal teenager; a young person battles an addiction. Suddenly we are focused.

Our words are few: "We care." "Please tell us more." "We are always here."

12:30 a.m. The street sounds diminish, but occasional screeching tires, racing motors and distant police sirens continue. We close our ears to the street and listen to the loneliness that comes through the wires—the fear, frustration, pain that never leaves.

"Can we help you?" we ask and hope that our listening will make the night less lonely.

2 a.m. Distractions subside and the sadness deepens. The phones tell us that "nobody cares," that "life rots" and that "there will be no tomorrow."

The intensity of our listening overcomes fatigue as we share the blackness of the night and talk about the options of daylight.

3 a.m. A desperate caller has found a way to end the pain. We talk about the finality of death and the possibilities of life. The voice finally responds with a faint sound of hope. We breathe a quiet sigh and respond to the next waiting caller.

4 a.m. The darkened room relaxes. We share a supportive glance before the night people ring again. We rest, but wonder about the ones we didn't reach, the nameless callers and those who only hinted at their pain.

5 a.m. Reluctantly, the streets begin to accept the traffic of a new day. We succumb to intermittent sleep and the phones pause briefly.

6:30 a.m. The pressures of our own lives come with the dawn. We struggle to maintain our focus on the needs of others. There are some who

ABOUT OUR PEOPLE

THE TOWNSMAN, OCTOBER 29, 1987

Mary Donahue: More Than A Teacher

By Melissa M. De Meo

Mary Donahue always wanted to be a doctor. But she couldn't get a scholarship. Then she thought she'd be a nurse. But when she got out of high school, she was 16; and you had to be 18 to enter nursing school.

So she went to Salem State College where she majored in special education. It's a choice she's stuck with ever since.

Donahue recently retired after 41 years of teaching special ed students in Andover's junior high schools.

"I never knew any such thing existed" before she got to college, Donahue said. Fueled by the desire to help people and by a training school principal who told her not to go into the field, Donahue got her master's in special ed at Boston University and started teaching at Andover's East Junior High School, which is now Doherty.

"I remember I had an interview before the School Committee, and there were nine people on the board," she said. "I was petrified."

Donahue got the job partly, she said, because the school department had decided to "let the married women go. Widows and divorcees could stay, but not the married teachers. Of course, you couldn't do that nowadays."

Pay scales were a lot different in the 1940s too. "I was given the enormous salary of $1,800, and I thought I was as rich as rich could be."

Donahue taught boys (girls were in a separate class) and sometimes had 18 of them at a time. A class that size is no easy feat to teach since each student has specialized needs.

"Normal children sort of learn regardless of who's there," Donahue said. Donahue's former students are all disabled in some way. Most of them are retarded, she said; some are accident victims; others are culturally deprived.

"There are some who are noticeably (disabled)—you can tell by looking at them. But kids nowadays, they understand. Years ago, they'd make fun of them."

At a practice school where Donahue taught once, the special ed students were in a different building than their non-disabled peers. "And that just made it worse because then you went to the 'dumbbell school.'"

Donahue said Andover schools try to integrate their special ed students with the other classmates as much as possible. They are mixed in non-academic classes like shop. In the case of a student Donahue had last year, though, the school made a special exception.

"She was exceptionally good at mathematics, and they put her in a regular seventh grade math class," she said. "And now she's in a regular eighth grade class. And that's good for her self-confidence."

The Salem State College training school principal who told Donahue years ago to stay away from special ed kids said it was too demanding, too frustrating, thankless. But Donahue loves a challenge. When one of her students seemed hopeless, she said, "it would challenge me all the more."

"One girl I had was a very difficult youngster," she said. "I can remember going to school and saying a prayer that today maybe she'd be straightened up. And she did eventually. And now she's married and has two children."

Her approach to teaching special ed was to "take (the students) at the level they're at and work from there." It's tough when the students are at such different levels, but they all do "just as much as they possibly can." By state law, special ed students have to stay in school until they're 21. Up until approximately 10 years ago, they could leave at 16.

And when they did, it wasn't the last contact they'd have with their teacher. Donahue would accompany her students on job interviews at local businesses and keep in touch with them long after graduation.

"Sometimes the phone will ring late at night, and you'll think, 'Oh, no,' but usually it's just to say hi. They like to keep in touch," Donahue said. "As long as they got into the world and adjust, that's all that mattered," she said.

"A lot of employers are anxious to get them (special ed graduates), because they're such good workers," Donahue said. "And employers who know about them—who have hired them before or who have a retarded person in their family—are especially anxious to get them because they know what they're like. I

by Jack Resnick

Usually, the selection of hospital where you plan to deliver your baby is limited by your obstetrician's practice. Some doctors have staff privileges at more than one hospital. Discuss with your doctor his or her and your preference. If you're working and haven't time to visit the hospital, the doctor's staff may be able to handle necessary details before you can be admitted. You and your husband should visit the hospital about the fifth month of pregnancy, when an approximate date for your admission can be established. At this time, you'll be able to discuss the hospital's policies and ask any questions that you might have pertaining to your delivery. You'll probably be surprised to find the hospital more flexible than you anticipated.

There is a wonderful selection of baby furniture at TINY TOTLAND. We have everything from pacifiers to strollers. Over 80 cribs on display. Wall decor and lamps. Babies toys for all ages... everything from "heaven to seven". Ask about our free lay-away plan. Delivery service. Stop in soon at TINY TOTLAND, 1111 Elm St., Manchester, N.H. "Where Quality Costs You Less." Tel. 1-603-623-6171.

Band Marches Off With Honors

Led by drum majors Kim O'Neill and Steve DeVoir, at center, the Andover High School Marching Band prepares to take the field Sunday at its own annual Andover/Haverhill competition. At the contest, co-sponsored by Haverhill High School and held at the Haverhill stadium, Andover won top honors in all categories—music, percussion, drum majors and band front—and captured a first-place gold medal in its division. The band has topped Division I (small band) in every competition it has entered this season; it will compete for the last time this year next Sunday, at the New England Scholastic Band Association Competition state meet, held at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

Band Places First

The Andover High School Marching Band placed first out of three bands in their division with the third highest score overall in the other three divisions Sunday in Haverhill. They also received Best Drum Major, Best Colorguard, Best Music Score and Best Percussion Score and achieved their first gold medal.

The band will compete in the NESBA finals on Sunday, Nov. 1, at Nickerson Field at Boston University. This will be the final competition and will decide who is the champion. With Andover's undefeated record from the past five competitions, the band has a great opportunity to win the championship.

Projects Completed

As part of the continuing renovation at the Methuen Mall extensive landscaping and roofing projects are nearing completion for 1987. Both projects will resume in the spring.

The landscaping beautification project has included new planting of trees and shrubs and replacing lightly planted areas in the parking lot with bright green sod.

The roof project is ongoing for approximately five years with the end result being an entire replacement with a rubberized roof.

Junior High Sponsors Fall Events

Halloween is in the air and students at Doherty Junior High School will celebrate at a holiday dance on Friday, Oct. 30. Seventh-graders can attend the dance scheduled for after school. Eighth and ninth-graders will have their dance at the school in the evening.

Doherty's first lip-sync contest will be held Wednesday, Nov. 4, in the auditorium from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. In a break with tradition, the school will sponsor three events, rather than the Cabaret. Prizes will be awarded for the best lip-sync performance. Parents and friends are invited. Teachers and students will be welcome to take part.

Students from the eight-grade computer applications class will travel to Boston's Computer Museum, the world's only museum devoted solely to computers. A guided tour past the world's largest computer will help the students understand computers from a social, historical and technological perspective. With more than 30 interactive exhibits, visitors can "paint" a picture, create a melody, design a car or play word games.

Another group of eighth-graders will tour the State House, having the chance to see how government works on a daily basis.

Both groups will visit Quincy Market for lunch before returning to school.

Students will head for Andover's Collins Center on November 18 for a performance of "The Kurt Thomas Gymnastic Spectacular." Thomas, a three-time world champion and an Olympian, is considered by many to be the world's greatest gymnast.

Doherty's gym will sport an updated look shortly. A new scoreboard, donated by Pepsi, will be in place for the basketball season. The new board has a console which can be used for announcing the games.

A mural will grace the gym wall, reflecting the school motto, "Pride in Performance." Jim Batchelder designed the work, a girl and boy representing each school sport.

Student council elections took place recently. The results were: Brigid Murphy, president; Alan Soong, vice president; Laura Wilson, secretary; Karen Ragonese, treasurer.

Back-to-School night, held October 22, was its usual big success. Parents enjoyed the chance to meet with teachers and follow their child's daily schedule.

Doherty PAC In Session

The Parent Advisory Council (PAC) of Doherty Junior High School met recently to discuss the agenda of all activities at the school.

Dr. Richard McGrail, principal, spoke briefly on the current repairs to the school roof. He assured the construction posed no health hazard to the students and the work would be completed as soon as possible. Any classes disturbed by the work will be relocated to other parts of the building.

Irene Blank spoke on teacher appreciation. McGrail then reviewed plans for meeting with the school improvement council and set up the membership of the new internal budget committee. These committees, composed of parents and faculty, will be set up in each school to act in an advisory manner.

New housemasters Kathy Blain and Dave Clark explained the workings of the new House system. Blain praised the sharing of the vice principalship, noting that "having more people in the area of school behavior will produce a more caring environment." Clark pointed to the "value of seeing the students in a classroom setting. As teachers and as housemasters, we will have a unique perspective."

Doherty teacher Pat Cupp, student council advisor, discussed the student council and its activities for the coming year. She explained the new structure of the students' governing body. A 30-member student council will be aided by class committees. Teachers Delores Laughlin, Dave Bettencourt and Karen Burke will volunteer as class advisors. The council will work toward one goal per month.

Cupp listed two fundraisers, the ninth-grade magazine drive November 6-16 and the seventh and eighth-grade gift wrap drive. Last year student council-sponsored fundraisers produced $8,000 which was used to purchase a new podium sound system for the auditorium and awards for the annual literary contest. The funds also cover 50 percent of the cost of class trips and ninth-grade, year-end activities.

Everyone was urged to support these fundraisers as well as the Halloween Dance on October 30 and the lip-sync contest in the auditorium November 4 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The PAC will meet again in November.

School Spirit Exhibited

By Lisa Herrmann

Fall Festival Week, Oct. 12-18, produced a tremendous show of school spirit at Andover High School. Banners recognizing each team sport were displayed in the foyer and cafeteria. The electronic bulletin board flashed "Fall Festival Week SPIRIT!" Students crowded the hallways in team uniforms. Teachers wore pins with the Andover High motto "Catch the Spirit—Go Warriors." Blue and gold decorated homeroom doors added to the school's upbeat atmosphere.

Because students were aware that Andover High school had a reputation for poor school spirit, the week was exceptionally rewarding. The attitudes of most students were positive. Robby Labell, a junior, stated, "It seemed like everyone got fed up with being told we had no school spirit. It was time we showed everyone that we are actually proud of our school."

The Thursday night pep rally was one of the highlights of the week and the Saturday night talent show drew large crowds. The high attendance gave students the chance to be recognized for their special talents in activities outside the classroom. Acts included singing, dancing, instrumental solos and dramatic skits. The students and faculty proved Andover High School to be more than just an excellent institution of learning. Teachers were able to witness the student's potential outside the classroom and students saw teachers in roles unseen before.

Families Host AFS Students

The American Field Service unites families and students from more than 70 countries for a year or a summer stay. Three Andover families are hosting foreign exchange students for this school year. Two students are attending Andover High School as seniors and the third is a student at Phillips Academy.

The Asgeirsson family of 245 Holt Road welcomed Ana Maria Olagaray of Argentina, the Blais family of 33 West Parish Drive are hosting Harald Schindele of Germany and Bruce, Marsha and Jeff Johnson are hosts to Tatu Tahkokallio of Finland.

Olagaray lives in Mendoza, Argentina, with her parents and younger brother. She speaks English, French and German, besides her native Spanish. Her school in Argentina goes six days a week. She participated in gymnastics and sang in the school choir. She has joined the choir at Andover High School and is interested in literature and writing.

Schindele is from Rottweil, a town in southwest Germany near the Black Forest. His family consists of his parents, a brother and sister. He participated in many triathalons and played tennis and basketball. He enjoys downhill skiing and playing the clarinet. He is pursuing his hobby of photography at Andover High and hopes to photograph a variety of New England scenes.

AFS president Dave Wahr states, "As we look at AFS's 40 years of promoting exchange, AFS host families continue to show us all that individuals can make a difference. These people are building much-needed bridges of understanding and their lives are being enriched in the process." To learn more about hosting an exchange student or becoming involved in AFS activities, call Wahr at Seneca Circle.

Rep. Tucker Speaker At Session

Rep. Susan Tucker was the main speaker at an area meeting of five chapters in eastern Massachusetts of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society, Women in Education, at the Marriott in Andover recently. Her topic was a report and summary of the most recent educational legislature to come before the State Legislature. She discussed the forthcoming certification rulings for teachers, formulated to make teaching "a profession, not an occupation."

Mary E. White, corresponding secretary of the state organization of Delta Kappa Gamma, Alpha Upsilon, brought the greetings of the state president. White, formerly a resident of Andover, is a teacher in Swampscott High School.

Denise P. McCarthy of Andover, president of Epsilon chapter, presided. She is principal of the Emily G. Weatherbee School in Lawrence.

To Present Gravestone Lecture

Dr. Melvin Williams will present his slide lecture on gravestones on Thursday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 p.m. on the second floor of the North Andover Historical Society's Old Center Hall, 3 Great Pond Road, North Andover. His lecture will explore the meanings behind the epitaphs and the symbolic art on the stones and trace the changes in design of gravestones over time. He will explain how to make gravestone rubbings and display several which he has made. Williams will also discuss the stones found in the two oldest burying grounds in North Andover. Refreshments will follow the lecture.

Williams is the author of "The Last Word: The Lore and Lure of Early New England Graveyards." He is chairperson of the English department of the American International College in Springfield.

Sampler On Display

By Virginia Lopez Begg

The Andover Historical Society has a real treat in store for visitors.

A special exhibit of 18th and 19th century samplers made in the Andover area will open Sunday, Nov. 1, at the society's headquarters, the Amos Blanchard House, on Main Street. Guests can examine this fine collection of early needlework from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and enjoy light refreshments. Norma Gammon, exhibits committee chairman, will present a gallery talk. The opening is part of the society's First Sunday Series and the exhibit will extend through the winter. There is a small admission fee.

Samplers are among the most appealing antiques. They are of interest to collectors, folk art enthusiasts and students of needleworkers women's history. The Andover Historical Society exhibit includes more than 25 samplers representing the various schools in the area. Each school is characterized by different stylistic variations. Viewers can trace the evolution of samplers from the earliest alphabet types through those with verses to the more elaborate bordered designs of the latest period.

Of particular interest are the samplers made in Andover itself by female members of some of the town's early families. The exhibit includes background information on these women which greatly enhances the samplers significance and value as so much craftwork and art created by women in the past has been anonymous.

The exhibit also features many articles used to make samplers and other forms of needlework. Thimbles, needles and needlecases, sewing boxes, sewing birds and thread, including a spool of Andover's own Smith & Dove thread.

Bank Was Unique Project

New West Andover Bank

The Channel Building Co. of Andover recently completed construction of one of its most unique projects, a 5,250 sq.ft. branch of the Andover Savings Bank located in the West Andover section of town. The River Road branch combines an inviting, contemporary appearance with some of the most up-to-date banking features, to provide a comfortable, personalized environment for its residential and corporate customers.

While the building is not as large as some of Channel's other projects, it presented a unique set of construction problems that highlighted Channel's diversity of skills, project management capability and uncompromising quality of workmanship.

The open, aesthetically pleasing design of the building was achieved by a unique combination of a wood frame and steel superstructure. According to Steve Esty, project manager, "The building required us to meld different building technologies and materials to achieve the feeling sought by the architect. There were a lot of difficult angles and because of the unique support requirements, we had to piece the building together section by section. It required a great deal of on-site coordination.

"We went out of our way to find quality people, who not only had worked on banks before, but who had worked together before. We took a real team approach. That enabled us to work together with the architect, John Daley, and the project designers, Financial Concepts, to overcome the problems and end up with an aesthetically pleasing and very functional building."

This feeling was supported by Daley who added, "The construction crew was as good as any I have ever run into. The workmanship was simply outstanding. They really cared about their work and it shows in the final result."

Steve Rier, vice president of Financial Concepts, echoed those sentiments. "I don't think there is anything Channel couldn't build. I would put them at the top of the list for any other projects I had in this area."

The branch features a "one stop-sit down" concept, where tellers will be able to provide the full range of bank offered services, including check and money transfers, while the customer remains seated at the teller window. To make this system work, Channel installed a complex pneumatic tube system to facilitate paper money transfers.

According to Jim McCobb, senior vice president at Andover Savings Bank, "We were

Bank's Assets Grow

Andover Savings Bank (NASDAQ:ANDB) has announced its operating results for the third quarter ended September 30, 1987. The bank's assets have grown to $619 million and deposits totalled $378 million. The bank's capital to assets ratio now stands at 17.1 percent.

Net income for the quarter totalled $2,513,000 or 50 cents per common share, compared to $2,099,000 in the third quarter of 1986, representing an increase of 20 percent. Net income included a net gain on the sale of securities and loans amounting to $746,000 before tax effect in the third quarter of 1987, versus $300,000 in the third quarter of 1986.

Year-to-date income for 1987 totalled $8,004,000 or $1.59 per share compared to $5,314,000 for the first nine months of 1986, representing an increase of 51 percent. Included in net income are gains from securities and loan sales which amounted to $2,321,000 before taxes for the 1987 period, compared to $1,315,000 for the 1986 period.

President Robert M. Henderson commented that the strong earnings performance reflected the continued demand for loans through the beginning of the third quarter. More recently, the increase in interest rates has slowed down the demand for loans, particularly in the residential lending area.

Andover Savings Bank is a Massachusetts chartered savings bank organized in 1834 and headquartered in Andover with branch banking offices in Lawrence, Methuen, North Andover and Tewksbury. The bank converted from a mutual institution to a stockholder-owned corporation on May 8, 1986.

Local Bank Offering New Program

Lawrence Savings Bank, Lawrence, announces a partnership with State Street Bank and Trust Company of Boston to offer "trust services" to their customers.

In making the announcement, Dwain B. Smith, president, Lawrence Savings Bank, said, "We have had a strong and growing demand for a full array of trust services in this area. The growth of the Merrimack Valley has created a demand for investment advice, state settlement and personal financial planning."

State Street was selected for their reputation in the trust services industry. They have one of the largest trust departments in New England and have been in existence since 1792.

Smith added, "As a result of this arrangement, we are now able to expand our commitment to serve the varied financial needs of our customers. State Street representatives are available to meet with Lawrence Savings Bank customers by appointment at any of our six offices or at a location that is convenient for them."

Lawrence Savings Bank introduced the new service to 75 local professionals at a recent reception at the Andover Marriott.

looking for something unique, something contemporary, that would appeal to the customers located in that area. We wanted a full service facility with commercial loan capability as well as drive-up facilities and a 24-hour automatic teller machine. Yet, we were severely constrained in the way we could use the land. I am extremely pleased with the way the project turned out and Channel played a big role in that.

"The had to overcome some significant problems, not just in the framing of the building, but in the drainage and landscaping as well. Their key seems to be that they have the right people with both the technical capabilities and the ability to deal with people. They were extremely responsive to all of our questions and concerns."

This was the fifth project Channel had performed for Andover Savings Bank and the sixth banking project they have done recently.

Channel is an Andover-based company providing design, construction and building renovation services for a wide range of industries, clients and building types within a 50-mile radius of Andover.

Organists, Choirs In Concert

Choir members from ten churches in the Merrimack Valley will combine to present a free concert of sacred anthems and hymns on Sunday, Nov. 1, at 4 p.m. at the Methuen Memorial Music Hall, Route 28 (Broadway), Methuen. The choir of 75 singers, under the direction of Earl Miller, will sing a series of choral works and several of the choirs will sing solo anthems.

The combined choirs will sing two works by George Frederick Handel (The Hallelujah Chorus and "Thanks Be to Thee") and Gabriel Faure's "Cantique de Jean Racine." Miller will accompany a series of hymns for the choirs and audience to sing. Since it will be All Saints Day in many churches, several hymns will be for that occasion and one of the solo anthems will be set to the famous text "Let us Now Praise Famous Men" to a melody by the English composer Bantok. Other solo anthems will be Thomas Matthew's "Twenty Third Psalm," Hal Hobson's arrangement of "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing," "The Canon of Praise" by 20th century American composer Natalie Sleeth and "O Sing Unto the Lord" by the 19th century music educator and composer "Lowell Mason."

Churches taking part in the program include Wakefield-Lynfield United Methodist Church (Millie Cunningham, music director), Redeemer Lutheran Church, Lawrence (Daryl Dolfe and Elizabeth Leighton, music directors), St. Paul's Episcopal Church, North Andover (Harriet Rudd, music director), Sacred Hearts Parish, Bradford (James Currier, music director), The Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, Reading (Gilbert MacFarlane, music director), St. Athanasius Church, Reading (Marcia Cutlip, organist), Belleville Congregational Church, Newburyport (Marian Ruhl Metson, music director) and the Parish of Christ Church, Andover (Earl Miller, music director)

THE LANDSCAPE DESIGN

Part IV

INITIATING A LANDSCAPE DESIGN

Initiating a landscape design begins with selecting a designer. If you like a company's work, call and ask about other projects you could see or if a portfolio is available. However, word of mouth from previous customers is probably the most reliable way to find a capable company.

When you meet with a designer you should feel that they understand your tastes and lifestyle. You should also feel comfortable with the basic ideas they present. The designer should have a working knowledge of plant material available at local nurseries and know what is hardy in your area. He or she should also be able to discuss options for construction methods and materials for walks, patios, walls, fencing, paving and lighting.

It is best to initiate a landscape design long before you plan to begin construction. Like any good planning, a well-thought-out design takes time. If you plan on having work done in the spring, fall would be the optimal time to start the design. Your site can be measured now while the weather is good. Over the winter the landscape can be designed, phases determined and the construction scheduled. First thing in the spring you will have a well-thought-out design, be scheduled to begin early and have the first selection of the spring plant material.

Ghost Story To Be Presented

Amie Martin of Dracut, fresh from her role as Rosita in "The Saints of Seventeenth Street," is stepping into the newly-vacated role of Wilma in the D.K. Oklahoma production, "The Light in the Mill," the mid-1800's ghost story about the drowning of a young millgirl.

Martin, a senior at St. Louis Academy, appeared in "The Light in the Mill" last fall as a different character. Her new role means she must unlearn the lines of that character and quickly move into the part of semi-mystical Wilma. "I'm really excited about it," she said. "I love the part of Wilma...it's a lot different from the role of Katie Kay that I did before. This one is harder and more complicated. Katie Kay was a follower, but Wilma is an instigator...a more dynamic character."

Martin has appeared in numerous school productions. This is her third play for Lowell playwright Oklahoma. In the summer of 1986 she appeared in "The Leg Man," a one-act comedy that had performances in Boston and Cambridge as well as Lowell.

"Amie is a very talented actress," says director Irene Ehl. "We are very lucky to have her to step in for us in "The Light in the Mill." she has a wonderful voice and lots of talent. Most important, she is willing to work really hard...which is what it will take, coming into a cast two weeks before the show opens."

Her character is one of the girl's coworkers who has a mystical dream that the dead girl has returned to haunt the mill.

"The Light in the Mill" will be presented free at Lawrence Heritage State Park Friday and Saturday, Oct. 30 and 31, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 1, at 3 p.m. Seating is limited and reservations are required.

Winning Golfers

A golf tournament, organized by the Andover Council on Aging and Ruthann Donahue Holzapfer of North Andover, benefited a support group for families of Alzheimer's disease victims. Holzapfer's father, Edward Donahue, died of the disease in 1983. Holzapfer, pictured fourth from left, is standing next to Dorothy Winn, the council's director. Flanking the women are the winners of the tournament, held Oct. 19 at the Andover Country Club, Mike Yaztremski, Tom Yameen, Joe Harkins and Bill Mansez.

The word turnpike originated in the days when toll collectors were armed with pikes, long-handled weapons with sharp iron heads. They used these weapons to prevent travelers who refused to pay the toll from using the roads.

Gymnastics Show At Center

Kurt Thomas will present "The Kurt Thomas Gymnastics Spectacular," a new show of gymnastics, dance and comedy, at the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts, Shawsheen Road, Andover, on Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 7 p.m.

Thomas said, "It is family entertainment that is fast paced and fresh and this tour with a cast of professional world-class gymnasts is truly unique."

For most sports, fans can debate the merits of which superstar is the greatest of all time. But for American gymnastics there is no argument; Thomas is the greatest gymnast in American history.

Three-time world champion, an Olympian and national champion, Thomas is also a two-time NCAA all-around champion. He won the Sullivan Award in 1979 as the country's amateur athlete of the year.

Thomas had refined the concept of the show last summer at Sea World in Orlando, Fla., where he attracted capacity audiences four times each day. It was there he found the answer for extracting the entertainment values of gymnastics and blending them into an enjoyable, attractive show.

Now residing in Scottsdale, Arizona, Thomas is working on his second gymnastics book and runs a gymnastics camp, club and several clinics.

"The Kurt Thomas Spectacular is truly a family show," said Glen A. Gulezian, managing director of the Collins Center. "And because we want to encourage children to attend, we have scheduled an earlier curtain time, 7 p.m."

Tickets are on sale at the Collins Center box office, Shawsheen Road, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and at all Ticketron locations.

Group discounts are available.

Founded in 1963 by E. Virginia William on the recommendation of George Balanchine, Boston Ballet is the fifth largest ballet company in the nation with 36 dancers and a repertoire of more than 100 works. Under the leadership of Artistic Director Bruce Marks, the company has broken box office records in Boston and achieved international critical acclaim highlighted by the world premiere of "Mort Subite" by Mark Morris, the most popular production of "The Nutcracker" in the world and the performance of the oldest existing version of "Coppelia" from the repertoire of the Royal Danish Ballet. Boston Ballet was the first American ballet company to perform in the People's Republic of China in 1980.

The company toured the world with Rudolf Nureyev dancing "Swan Lake" and "Don Quixote" in 1982. Recently, the company opened the PepsiCo Summerfare Festival in Purchase, N.Y. Boston Ballet is a classically-based company with repertoire including fully staged, large scale productions such as "Swan Lake," "Sleeping Beauty," "Giselle" and "Coppelia." The company is equally well versed in contemporary ballet with significant new works by Mark Morris, Elisa Monte, Jim Self, Kenneth Rinker and Susan Marshall.

Tips For Safe Halloween

ued. "They increase visibility to motorists as well as lighting a pathway." A plastic pumpkin with a flashlight inside for "spooky" lighting is fun to carry and allows youngsters to be seen.

The auto club suggests children be encouraged to use makeup rather than face masks. "If a mask cannot be avoided, enlarge the eye holes so that a child can see in all directions," Christensen stated. Assorted non-toxic makeup kits are sold in stores.

"Halloween can be fun for older siblings and parents as well," said Christensen. "If you accompany smaller children on their planned trick-or-treat trip." One restriction is to limit doorbell ringing only to those homes known by the family. Even in familiar neighborhoods, stop only at houses with well-lighted porches or doorways. "Children of all ages should be instructed not to enter any residence unless the accompanying adult approves," he stresses.

"Carrying two trick-or-treat bags in different colors is a clever ploy seen on 'The Cosby Show,' and it works," stated Christensen. One colored bag can be for those treats from known families and the other for treats from unknown houses. "It goes without saying that all treats should be checked and sorted before eating," he said.

The auto club offers several safe driving tips for motorists. Limit driving speed to 15 miles per hour in residential neighborhoods between the hours of 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. Watch for children darting out from between parked cars and use extra caution when pulling in or out of driveways. Use headlights as soon as it's dusk. Come to a complete stop when making a right turn on red after determining that there are no cos-

"Flashlights and light sticks are a must if youngsters will be out at night," Christen continturned creatures in the crosswalk who might be unaware of your presence. "Remember that a youngster's thoughts are on fun, not pedestrian safety," cationed Christensen.

Halloween requires shared responsibility on the part of motorists and pedestrians for an enjoyable and safe holiday for everyone.

Collaborative

riculum subcommittee of the project, said the collaborative school will differ from regular schools in that it will emphasize skills, knowledge and values in addition to basic school curriculum. For example, she said, secondary-level students will participate in projects dealing with money, in which they will learn to balance a checkbook, create their own budget, and learn trade offs as to what they may or may not be willing to sacrifice when living within a budget.

"This incorporates, math, social studies skills and a value system" she explained. Upon leaving the school, students should be prepared not just for high school, but for life in the 21st century. In addition, Glasheen added, children will have developed problem-solving and critical thinking skills, and will have a stronger sense of self-esteem as well as school spirit and respect for others.

The collaborative school would also be affiliated with at least one college or university to encourage new teacher training and also to help veteran teachers learn new techniques. Jane Cahill, of the Professionalism subcommittee, commented "some of the established ways (of teaching) are very good and effective, but there are new ways to teach that deserve to be tried, too."

As plans sit now, the collaborative school would be governed by a nine-member board of directors that would be comprised of one resident from both Andover and Lawrence, a member of each community's school committee, two parents of collaborative school students, and three appointed educational experts. "The residents would be elected at-large" said Jean Salazar of the governance subcommittee, "and the parents would be elected by all the parents of children at the school."

Monday's hearing was the final public forum on the project's preliminary report. The feasibility committee will review the report in November, and if they give approval, Richards will present the proposal to both Andover and Lawrence school committees in time for a January vote. Richards added he expects the proposal to be ready for a vote in time for Andover's spring town meeting.

Meanwhile, legislation is being drafted to allow the state to partially fund the project. It is estimated the commonwealth will pick up 56 percent of the tab for the collaborative school's annual operating cost of $6 million. Richards also remarked, "the state will pick up 100 percent of our site preparation and construction costs."

Still, the project has its dissenters. Dziadul believes Andover should be trying to improve the curriculum and staff "in our neighborhood schools" rather than "diverting the best teachers to a collaborative school."

"This project really just benefits Lawrence," he said. "If the state wants to commit money to Lawrence, let them do it. If Lawrence needs help with their educational system, the state should help them. Let's open our wallets."

But, Dziadul contended, "nobody (in Andover) is going to risk lessening the opportunity for their child for a speculative, hypothetical advance for someone else."

Every million years an entire thin surface layer of the moon's soil is turned over 100 times by meteorites that land on the planet.

Mr. and Mrs. David Dollar

Dollar-Whitley

Lesley Paige Whitley, daughter of Paul L. and Lesley J. Whitley of 4 Virginia Road, and David Richard Dollar, son of John G. and Muriel Dollar of Rutherford, N.J., were married Sept. 13 at St. Peter's-by-the-Sea in York, Maine.

The bride, maternal granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie D. Westfall and paternal granddaughter of Walter R. Whitley, all of Andover, was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore an ivory St. Simone dress with a dropped waist. The ankle-length dress was of heavy English lace.

Her attendants were her sisters. Matron of honor was Paula Whitley-Miner of Norwich, Conn. Maid of honor was Lauren Whitley of Cambridge, and the junior bridesmaid was Layne Whitley of Andover. The bridesmaids wore beige tea-length, dropped-waist dresses of chantilly lace and satin. The bride and her attendants carried bouquets of bright fall colors.

Emerson Grants Extension To Obtain Lawrence Location

By Lewis C. Howe

For the past 23 months, the question has been, "Is Emerson College moving to the Merrimack Valley?" The answer remains uncertain.

The 107-year-old communications college, located in Boston's Back Bay, has been frustrated in its attempts to secure an 85-acre site along the Lawrence/Andover border by litigation from the properties' owners.

Last week, Emerson President Allen E. Koenig granted the city of Lawrence a three-month grace period to work out a plan to allow the taking of all parcels for the college as part of Lawrence's Riverfront Park Urban Renewal Project.

"I have recommended to our Board of Trustees that we delay any action in reference to Lawrence until January 15, 1988" Koenig announced at a press conference Friday. The extension is designed to give Lawrence and state officials time to develop a financing plan for the project that will cover an estimated $11 million in land acquisition and site preparation costs. Emerson, which was originally promised the site at a token cost of $100, has sunk $2.15 million into Lawrence since 1985.

Under a proposed new agreement, the school would not be required to pay any further land disposition costs, with state and city agencies picking up $6 million of the cost. A meeting last week between state officials—including state Sen. Patricia McGovern (D-Lawrence), Congressman Chester Atkins, and state Representative Susan Tucker (D-Andover)—and city and college leaders resulted in a tentative plan to revive the project, which was informally declared dead in the water earlier this month.

In addition, the state will seek to extend the school's $60 million project bond, which expires in December, by six months to allow the school to retain the monies for a Lawrence campus plan. Lawrence Mayor Kevin Sullivan also pledged to have the city devise a new financing plan for Emerson after the election of a new city council next month. The present Lawrence city council failed to approve funding for Emerson last February, necessitating legal footwork on the part of local banks to temporarily save the project.

Koenig announced he was pulling out of Lawrence last month after lawsuits brought by the five landowners of the proposed Riverfront Park site (Lawrence Lodge of Elks, Harold Brooks, Cyr Trust, Ryder Truck and Andover Business Park) delayed the city's attempts to take the land by eminent domain.

Judge John Forte last week allowed Lawrence to begin taking a disputed 9.6-acre parcel behind the Elks' Lodge, and one key to the eventual success of the plan will hinge on whether Forte will force the landowners to post substantial security if they should appeal a legal decision in favor of the city.

Koenig called these latest developments "very significant." The revised funding package would "make our costs $4 million less than before." The balance, he said, will be covered by the state or "by Lawrence city council bonding after January 1, 1988."

"The city promised its attorneys that Judge Forte's presumably positive decision will require the judge to put up an appeal bond," Koenig continued. "This was another significant development for us."

The college president also announced the school is negotiating an option and purchase and sale agreement with Emhart Corporation in order to buy the United Shoe Manufacturing site in Beverly. But, he added, "Beverly is clearly a backup contingency site" for Emerson, which is again committed to Lawrence—for now.

Koenig said he was "concerned" about discoveries of hazardous waste at the Beverly location, but was confident that Emhart could clean the site up. The USM property consists of one million square feet of old warehouse space within three concrete buildings. Emerson has until January 6 to exercise its option to purchase the site, and Koenig expressed confidence that any problems in Beverly "are solvable."

Koenig commented the two communities are "not in competition" for the college's attention, saying he views Beverly as "an insurance policy in case Lawrence doesn't deliver" on its latest round of promises. When asked if Beverly was being used as "a pawn" in negotiations with Lawrence, the president responded, "I suppose you could characterize it that way."

Meanwhile, Emerson will "vigorously prosecute" counter-suits against all the landowners, Koenig said. "All five of them harassed us, they all sued me, and they all sued the city." But, he added, the Elks will be the first of the landowners to be prosecuted by the school.

The college president stated "our biggest enemy is time" in finding a home for the institution, which now enrolls 2,500 full and part-time students. Koenig was quick to point out the school is still entertaining offers from other communities, and that "this is definitely the last chance for Lawrence."

Planners Reject Two Subdivisions Grant Extension To Third Proposal

By Lewis C. Howe

The Planning Board Tuesday night rejected two proposed subdivisions and extended the deadline for a third.

The board unanimously voted down the "Apple Hill" and "Farnham Estates" proposals, while the planners put off a vote on Joseph Watson's "Watson Farm Estates" until December 3.

Drainage concerns led to the thumbs-down vote on Apple Hill, a four-lot project that had been slated for Lowell St. The board determined that off-site drainage to private property could cause numerous erosion problems for neighbors. The slope of the site was also seen as being too steep to prevent negative drainage impact to the area.

Numerous problems shot down the Farnham Estates proposal. Developer John DeLoury was unable to gain drainage easements for the planned 7-lot subdivision from Yvon Cormier, who owns adjacent parcels. The planners were also concerned with the developer's failure to provide estimates on the amount of earth to be removed during construction. Steve Colyer, town physical planner, said the high volume of displaced earth would result in "post-development impacts to abutting property."

Watson's proposal, originally submitted on March 26, 1987, has been delayed for months as the developer attempted to resolve drainage issues on the property. An existing farm pond on the site will handle much of the runoff, but the proposal also calls for an increase in drainage across private property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Drew Webb at 2 Algonquin Ave.

The developer has been negotiating with the Webbs to place an easement on their property to protect the land from runoff damage. Both William MacLeod, representing Watson, and the Webbs claimed Tuesday night they want to see the easement constructed, but as of now no written agreement exists.

"My sole concern," Webb commented, "is that we don't damage my property further. I don't object to the project, just the way (Watson's) gone about it." MacLeod said "both sides want the work done," but that the Webbs have not been willing to "put it in writing."

Board members agreed the subdivision was a "good project" and worth saving. Russ Moran of the Planning Board said he was "dismayed" by the developer's failure to gain an easement after numerous extensions had been granted. "I'm very frustrated," he said. "Why is it taking so long?"

Board member Carl Byers said "you're so close to an agreement, it would be a shame to lose it now." Chairman Michael Houghton made a motion to give Watson one final extension. "You must come back with an agreement and easement, or the proposal will have to be withdrawn," he told Watson. The board voted 4-1 (Moran dissenting) to grant the five-week grace period.

In other business, the Planning Board discussed a proposed 11-lot subdivision for a ten-acre site off Greenwood Road near Route 495.

The "Dairy Lane" development would be constructed on land currently listed under rule 61-A for "agricultural use," which provides the owner a "substantial tax relief," Colyer stated. The landowner will be required to 'pay back' to the town the amount of the tax reduction received over the years once the site is developed.

In addition, property falling under rule 61-A must be offered for sale to the town before any development may take place. "The town has the right of first refusal," Colyer told the board, adding the land is located within the Watershed Protection Overlay District, which might provide a reason for the town to purchase the site.

Colyer suggested the developer also examine the possibility of "clustering" the subdivision. Scott Sampson of Riverside Engineering, representing applicant Robert Tisbert, said no such plans had been made, to which Colyer responded, "you should give some thought to it." Clustering the homes, he said, would reduce the project's frontage, give the town open space behind the subdivision, "and you get a better design out of it."

Houghton instructed Sampson to submit a proposal based on clustered housing, saying "the board is not disposed to vote in favor of this until we see what a cluster might look like." The applicant agreed to do so.

Another potential problem for Dairy Lane is stormwater drainage, Colyer said. "The existing 12-inch drain line in Greenwood Road would be surcharged by the development's runoff" he explained.

In order to correct this, the applicant must either control the runoff on site or divert the runoff. Two options are to send the runoff across Greenwood Road to the drainage system at the Starwood Crossing subdivision, or to the Route 495 area. The latter option may require permission from the Interstate highway system.

Sampson said no formal plans have been drafted, but that "we plan to split the runoff" between the two locations. The Board will render a decision on the proposal by November 22.

The planners also held a public hearing on a definitive subdivision plan by Theodore Newman for a five-lot subdivision, "Bakers Meadow Estates," which would be located on Argilla Road near the proposed Abbott Pond comprehensive permit development. The conventional plan would be served by town water and sewer.

The Planning Board meets again this Monday, Nov. 2, in the third floor conference room at town hall.

Seifert Says Town Must Choose School System Type Desired

By Lewis C. Howe

School Superintendent Kenneth R. Seifert believes Andover has to make a choice concerning what kind of public school system it wants for the dawn of the next century.

Seifert lobbied for more funds for staff and curriculum development at Tuesday's meeting of the Budget Committee, the first of three such scheduled hearings before the administration presents its Fiscal 1989 budget to the school committee on January 5.

"The budget process is an honest attempt to educate the community and promote understanding of the limits of the schools," Seifert said. "Most people think getting good standardized test scores, having an award-winning band, having strong athletic teams and having students get into their 'first choice' college means you have a strong school system. We've done that."

"If people say that's enough," the superintendent continued, "that we don't need good staff development, and good curriculum development, then that's fine."

But, Seifert pointed out, "what do standardized tests really measure? They measure recall and comprehension, but not analytical skills. I don't think we should look at our high test scores and rest on that."

Seifert said the schools can "continue to crank out 95th percentile test scores, or we can go further." He proposed a four percent increase in spending for equipment, staff development and improved curriculum. "If we don't get the shot in the arm we need in these areas," the superintendent stated, "we're not going to maintain the pace we have."

The current system of "an hour here and there" being devoted to staff development is "not appropriate" in designing the visionary "21st Century School," Seifert commented, which he said begs the question of what residents want from their school system.

"One way or the other," he told the gathering of teachers and parents who will submit individual school budgets to the central office, "it's time for us to decide which way we want to go in fulfilling our 'social contract' for education. As an administrator, I'll go either way. I do what I'm instructed to do."

In order to go beyond Andover's surface-level achievements, Seifert said, the school system has to commit more resources to educating its staff and designing a more comprehensive curriculum. "The amount of money we have

Library Finally Sets Date For Moving

Nancy C. Jacobson, director of Memorial Hall Library, Andover, announced this week that the long-awaited move into the new addition of the library will begin Monday, Nov. 16.

Memorial Hall Library will be closed November 16, 17 and 18. It is expected to re-open Thursday, Nov. 19, with limited service available in the new wing only.

Once the move has been accomplished, the original building will be closed to the public while it is being renovated. Until this second phase of the project has been completed, the public may still encourter crowded conditions and limited services in some areas, especially reference and circulation services and reading/study space.

Effective November 19, all access to the library will be through the new entrance at the rear of the building adjacent to the library parking lot. The lot may be entered from either Essex or Pearson Streets.

"We are excited to finally be moving and we are anxious to show off our new facility to the public," Jacobson said. "The official open house will not be held, however, until sometime in January."

Celebrating Autumn

One of the many activities of the day was face-painting. Here, Joy Kaylos starts a pumpkin on 6-year-old Ryan Hanna's cheek. Inset, the finished product.

OPINION

THE TOWNSMAN, OCTOBER 29, 1987

Weak Opposition

As could be expected the proposed Andover/Lawrence Collaborative school is meeting with some opposition by some Andover parents.

The opposition is token at present, but could be expected to build with time as plans progress and the experimental, educational project moves ahead.

The opposition, however, would appear to be weak and self-serving at best.

The collaborative school is to be a facility for volunteer students from Andover and Lawrence to mix and receive an educational opportunity greater than that offered in the present individual school buildings in the two communities.

Those opposed say that the new facility will detract from the town school system. Also, that Andover's school system is superior and one of the prime factors in moving here from other communities.

First, it seems difficult to believe that any educational opportunity as proposed by those planning the collaborative school program could possibly detract from the town's school system.

As Linea Gershenberg explained at a meeting this week, the collaborative school represents 'the excitement of putting all your dreams to work,' with its advanced arts programs, for instance, and unprecedented opportunities for professional advancement, which in turn is passed on to the students.

The school would also be affiliated with at least one college from which would come teacher trainees who will offer staff members an insight into new techniques.

But, the principal objection seems to center on the greatness of the Andover school system compared to others.

This, of course is a thinly veiled opposition to mixing Andover youngsters with those from Lawrence.

Andover does, indeed, have a fine school system and is well supported by its residents.

But, frankly, it is no finer than those who staff it and those who take advantage of the educational opportunities presented therein.

The same applies to other communities as well, including Lawrence.

There is little doubt that the city has its problems, but as for the students who attend the public schools there, the opportunities are present and many go on to enter the professions and other walks of life. It is graphic evidence that for those who so desire, opportunities do exist.

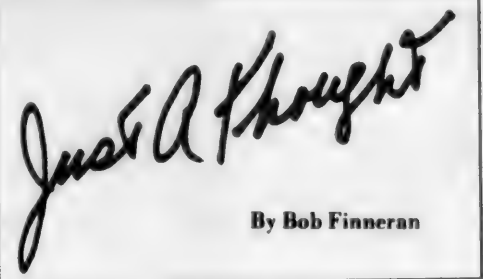

In case no one had noticed the Harvards of this world aren't camped out at the entrance to Andover High school awaiting the graduates.

It has to be earned, as the commercial says.

So, let us not be presumptuous in assuming that a mix of Andover/Lawrence youngsters will be damaging. But rather examine the collaborative school concept as an amalgamation of youngsters from two communities taking advantage of educational opportunities not necessarily available in other school environments.

If the volunteer numbers are not forthcoming in Andover, the opportunity will be provided to those in North Andover and Methuen.

It could be a regrettable decision for Andover residents.

Here we are at the end of October and the holiday season is now officially upon us.

But, it's only fair to give advance warning about this time of year.

The first person to put up any semblance of Christmas decorations prior to the observance of Thanksgiving gets the 'Jingle Bell Rock' award, which is to say the display should be belted with a boulder.

There is justification for working on municipal displays which are not turned on until Thanksgiving, but these private displays lighting up the landscape before December is simply ridiculous.

Something as disgusting as having Santa Claus on a float in the Fourth of July parade which has happened.

Andover police have to respond to any number of unusual calls from time to time, so it didn't take much for them to doff the dress blues Monday night and saddle up to hit the coral.

Seems a white pony escaped from its enclosure somewhere along South Main Street shortly before midnight and started roaming the environs in the area of the Elks Lodge.

With the deftness of a John Wayne the young, frightened animal was captured, calmed and placed in safekeeping at a Wildwood Road address for the night until its rightful owner could reclaim it the next morning.

Which goes to prove that our Blue Knights are tough on crime, but they have a heart too.

Generally spend early Sunday afternoons attempting to be entertained by watching the Patriots on the tube.

But, last Sunday was spared, being on the road. The game was just as bad on radio.

Of all teams to lose to in such ignominious fashion, the Indianapolis Colts, a team that has been the pits for so many seasons.

The game sells out every Sunday simply because in Indiana there's nothing else to do. They have a beautiful hotel in downtown Indianapolis with a revolving bar at the top. Unlike a similar hotel in Boston where one can view the Charles, the Boston skyline and maybe even New Hampshire points from time to time, in Indianapolis you view the convergence of five streets on a rotary.

And, to insure that no one uses this vantage point to view the Colts in action the city-state spent a few million more to put a dome on the stadium.

Don't very often get mail on a personal level, but was pleased this past week to hear from 'Gypsy.'

Actually, I didn't hear from her, the letter was to Princess, who appeared here a few weeks ago and who was going to do some politicking and travelling. 'Gypsy' (right) expressed an interest in travelling with her. They're meeting for tea Monday afternoon.

The Public Forum

Objects To Badgering

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

Your October 22 editorial, "An Openness," omitted two important facts and missed the point of Planning Board Chairman Michael Houghton's public statement about the Andover League of Women Voters.

Fact #1: The league did accuse the Andover Planning Board of violating the Open Meeting Law. On October 9 Michael Houghton received a letter from the district attorney's office stating, "On behalf of the League of Women Voters of Andover, Jean Salazar has complained that subcommittees of the Planning Board which you appointed have been meeting in violation of the Open Meeting Law."

Fact #2: The Planning Board did not violate the Open Meeting Law. All subcommittee meeting notices have been properly and prominently posted. The public has been in attendance at many of these meetings; their participation has been welcomed by the Planning Board.

The point of Mr. Houghton's remarks was that constant badgering and harassment of municipal officials serves no useful function. This statement specifically said, "I would suggest that the time and energy being expended (by the current leaders of the league) looking for villains and conspiracy would be better spent in coming forth with some recommendations and a course of action that can benefit Andover and the people in it."

Town Hall should not be a battlefield. We are all members of a community. We share common goals. We elect municipal leaders who appoint full-time employees and part-time board members who are our neighbors to help us realize these goals.

It is extremely difficult to deliver good government in an atmosphere clouded with tension and mistrust. The current leaders of the Andover League of Women Voters have been singularly intent upon perpetuating and emphasizing such an atmosphere.

While keeping a constant vigil for procedural purity, the league is missing an important opportunity. Instead of wasting energy unjustly accusing town boards of violations which did not occur, the league could be helping those boards educate voters and encouraging townspeople's participation in the board's open hearings.

Your editorial urges vigilance and insistence upon compliance with the law. Let's not carry that to an extreme which produces the constant harassment that would jeopardize Andover's strong tradition of excellent citizen leadership on volunteer boards. Who benefits?

Grateful

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

I was deeply touched by a card I recently received from a very lovely lady who wrote that she was still praying for Scott (and me) and wanted to know how he was doing. It occurred to me there may be other caring individuals with the same unanswered question, so let me joyfully say that Scott is now back at Andover High School with one objective in mind and that is to work very hard so that he can graduate with his class, the Class of '89. Allelujah! Miracles do happen. His determination warms my heart and has convinced me that he will achieve his goal.

Scott's long and difficult battle back to life has, of course, left its mark. There has been a dramatic change in his personality for one thing—he is no longer the sometimes brash, ever confident, highly spirited and carefree teenager I watched leave for school on the morning of February 27. That young man has gone forever. Nonetheless, be assured I thank the Lord daily for giving my son another chance at life.

I will never cease being grateful for all of your prayers which were in so many ways answered. I'm still praying for a bright future for my son and as the Lord has already been so kind, I am certain that, too, will come to pass.

God bless you.

Booters Top Lowell

By Scott Friese

The Andover High School men's varsity soccer team, now 11-2-3, beat Lowell and Central Catholic 2-0. The Warriors' final game of the regular season is Saturday at 7 p.m.

The Warriors, needing to win its final three in-conference games to win the MVC title, realized the importance of last Wednesday's game against Lowell. Tom Ciolfi, in his new forward position, scored the first of his two goals early in the first half due to a fine trap in front of the net, turned and rocketed the ball into the back of the net for the lead. Andover continued its success in executing corner kicks as Ciolfi got above all defenders and redirected the lofty pass past the goalie to give the Warriors their second goal and the game.

Last Friday afternoon the Warriors faced Central Catholic at Merrimack College. Rob Stoltz recorded the shut-out as Andover, on goals by Matt Pothier and Ciolfi, won 2-0.

Warriors Take Fourth Straight

By Lewis C. Howe

A handful of big offensive plays combined with an aggressive defense to propel the Andover Golden Warriors to their fourth consecutive victory, a 28-6 yawner over lowly Wilmington in a mistake-filled contest last Saturday in Wilmington.

For the second week in a row, the Warriors broke out on their first series of downs, as quarterback Brandon McCue ran the option to the right side and cut upfield to find unlimited daylight. Sixty yards and an Andy Weiner extra point later, the visitors had a 7-0 advantage over the host Wildcats.

A 69-yard touchdown toss from McCue to John Perry doubled the score, but Wilmington's stacking defense kept the middle of the field closed to Andover's running game most of the afternoon. Halfback Devon Arsenault, who had averaged 154 yards rushing during the Warriors' last three wins, was held to just 36 yards on the ground in 12 carries.

"Their defensive strategy forced us to go for the big play a lot," commented Andover Coach Dick Collins. "That's a dangerous way to play the game, but I don't blame (Wilmington Coach Ed) Mr. Harrison for it. He kept his team in the ballgame that way."

The Warriors' team rushing total of 148 yards was their lowest since their opening-game loss to Chelmsford in the rain September 18, but he quipped "most teams don't have to deal with having everyone but the cheerleaders up in the middle of the line."

Several dropped passes caused the Andover offense to sputter, and despite McCue's totals of 161 yards and two touchdowns (both to Perry), Collins admitted "we were not as sharp as we had been" in previous weeks.

The defense was a different story. "This was our best game of the year so far" the coach stated, referring to the relentless defensive play that allowed Wilmington just 108 total yards. "They completed a couple of passes" said Collins, "but (quarterback Dan Woods') totals were only 5 for 20, and we intercepted them five times."

A strong pass rush kept pressure on Woods all afternoon, and Perry (2), Scott Wallace, Tom Murray and John Thompson were all able to pick off errant Wildcat tosses.

Wilmington's only score came in the second quarter, when John Rago blocked a Steve Surrette punt at the Andover 20, then had the presence of mind to pick up the loose pigskin and race unaccosted into the end zone to make it 14-6.

The Warriors came right back, as Arsenault returned the ensuing kickoff 45 yards to the Wilmington 40. Six plays later, McCue found Perry over the middle at the 15, and the speedy split end outdistanced the plodding secondary to put Andover up by 15 at the half.

The second half was a painful display for the Parents' Day crowd, as the teams spent much of the final two quarters impersonating the "replacement" Giants. Worthy of note was Surrette's 38-yard coffin corner punt that forced the Wildcats to start a potential comeback drive from their own three yard line.

During one second-half stretch, four consecutive possessions ended in interceptions, including one by Wilmington's Tim Fay, who nabbed McCue's fourth-down pass in the Wildcat end zone to prevent the score from being more lopsided. A late 3-yard touchdown run by Rick Lafond, followed by Weiner's 14th PAT in 15 attempts, accounted for the final margin of victory.

Lady Warriors Move To 10-3-1

By Jay Saunders

Andover routed an inexperienced Lowell team 6-0 in the first game of the week. Krissie Carothers opened the scoring with the assist going to Kim Heseltine. Goals followed rapidly from Shaleen Cassily, Lisa Berberian and Erin Lynch, with assists from Jodi Saunders (2) and Kathleen Radulski. Senior Sharon Petzold (returning after a long illness) continued the scoring when she moved aggressively to a ball fed by Carothers. Cassily got her second goal on a pass from Stephanie Melillo. Senior fullback Beth Howe made it 6-0 on an unassisted goal. Sophomore keeper Nicole Ricci was strong in goal, picking up the shutout.

The week's second game was a bitter disappointment for Andover. An aggressive, fired up Wakefield team scored early and handed the girls a 4-0 defeat. Wakefield scored twice within the first six minutes of play, beating the Lady Warriors in all phases of play. As the half unfolded Andover fought back and began to counterattack only to be thwarted by a strong, disciplined defense. Wakefield closed the half with two more goals, the second coming on a questionable call.

The Andover girls came out hard and fast in the second half. Midfielders Kerry Fitzpatrick, Kathy Doran and Saunders took control of play and dominated the middle two-thirds of the field. Hard-working senior forwards Heseltine and Petzold fought to overcome a packed Wakefield defense that had retreated to protect their lead. The second half belonged to Andover. Keeper Karen Del Sarto was strong in goal as she led an improved defense.

In J.V. action, the Andover girls extended their unbeaten record with wins over Lowell and Wakefield. Cara Zapala, Una Gauthier, Dee Dee Sullivan and Julie Mason scored goals against Lowell. Molly Corkery played a strong game, getting an assist. Mimi Bernardin was strong in defense in a close match against Wakefield, while Beth Cronin supplied the offensive punch, scoring two goals with an assist from Debbie Donovan.

Swimmers Extend String

The Golden Warrior Wave girls' varsity swim team extended its undefeated string to six as they swept over Lowell last Thursday 109-63 at the Greater Lawrence Tech pool.

Triple winners Laura Koerckel and Amy Van Aken teamed with Erika Suduiko and Kate Robb to take the 200 yard medley relay in a seasonal best 2:03.78. Allyson Bates, Bryn McGovern, Pam Boucher and Karen Pedersen were third.

Van Aken won the 200 free with Kristen Hubbell second and Rebecca Poulo fourth.

Koerckel won the 200 yard individual medley with Tracey Pool second. Laura Ghirardini, bad ankle and all, was second in the 50 free while Lisa Fox was fourth and co-captain Lisa Hermann fifth.

Andover's divers Mia Kearins was first, Patti Del Trecco second and Dee Dee Castignoli third.

Van Aken won the 100 yard butterfly with Boucher in second place. Suduiko and Pool were 1-2 in the 100 free.

Koerckel swam neck and neck in the 500 free with her opponent but came on in the latter stages of the race to make the best of her superb turns and won with a three-second advantage. Fox was third and co-captain Johanna Hohn placed fourth with a six-second time improvement.

Hubbell turned in a seasonal best time for second place in the 100 yard backstroke with Suduiko third and Ghirardini fourth.

Robb maintained an advantage gained on the start and increased on each turn as she won the 100 yard breaststroke with McGovern finishing second, showing strong improvement.

In the Lawrence meet on October 16, Herrman was second in the 100 free while Kristen Alberich was fifth. Kate Robb won the 500 yard freestyle with Sandi Rygwalski, third.

Bates showed a three-second time improvement in winning the 100 back, Dianne Schwarz tied for second and Cheryl Castignoli was fifth.

McGovern captured the 100 yard breaststroke with Monica Davis second and Janet Snell third.

Hubbell, Karen Pedersen, Fox and Suduiko won the 400 yard freestyle relay while Bates, Ellen Cohen, Tricia Dziadosz and Snell took second place.

Pool, Hubbell, Fox and Ghirardini easily won the 400 yard freestyle relay while Herrmann, Ellen Cohen, Eliza Tilghman and Tricia Dziadosz were third.

Pam Boucher, Alison Butland, Patti Del Trecco, Laura Ghirardini, Kristen Hubbell, Mia Kearins, Laura Koerckel, Tracey Pool, Erika Suduiko and Amy Van Aken have qualified for the Northern Sectional championship meet. Hubbell, Koerckel, Pool, Suduiko and Van Aken have also qualified for the state championship meet.

Squirt A Wins

The Andover Squirt A team avenged their only Valley League loss to date with a hard-fought 3-2 victory over Northern Middlesex. Northern Middlesex got on the board first, scoring midway through the first period for a 1-0 lead. Andover tied the score on a goal by hot scoring Chris Halecki, his tenth goal of this young season, assist to Dan Hansberry. Ryan Moynihan put Andover ahead with assists going to Scott Munroe and Brian Kwon. Northern Middlesex tied the score at 2-2 late in the third period. Moynihan continued his clutch scoring as he got the game winner seven seconds later on a beautiful move off a feed from Tim McGovern. Peter Afarian continued to play steady goal. He got good defensive help from Volpe, Johnson, Baily, Trede and Kown.

West Splits On Week

By Amy Burnham

The West Junior High School field hockey team visited Phillips Academy. The team was met by Coach Susan Landy who was a former student of the junior high and coach at Sanborn School. A large crowd of spectators was on hand since many of the players at P.A. are local residents. The action got underway at 3:30 p.m. Both teams battled to a scoreless tie for the first half.

In the second half West's frontline was able to apply constant pressure until finally Amy Burnham drove in the game-winning goal on an assist from Grace Ann Perry with 4:28 remaining. Maureen Mitchell used the clock as she slowed down play making it nearly impossible for P.A. to penetrate West's defense. Mitchell chalked up her third shutout of the season. This was the second game in a row that the backfield of Jennifer Enos, Rebecca Goldman, Jennifer Brooks, Sharon Wang, Amy Fantini, Debra Flashenburg and Kathy Kim showed marked improvement.

The next day the always powerful Tyngsboro visited Andover and caught West defense early in the game with a score. The team tied the game at 16:40 of the second half only to see the opposition break it open on a penalty shot with 1:17 remaining.

Vivian Chen, Ben Medler and Chris Costa did a great job keeping score, timing and administering first aid.

West starts the second half of the season with a 3 and 4 record. The girls face Methuen, Masconomet, Tyngsboro and Chelmsford.

Karate Students In Tournament

Nov. 14 is the date of the fifth annual Tae Kwon Do Invitational Karate Championships, and the students in the Andover class are hard at work hoping to bring home the gold.

The competition is being held at the Bishop Gertin High School in Nashua, N.H., with over 500 students and 50 Black Belts in competition. Participating at the tournament will be over 300 students representing the 14 locations of the Tae Kwon Do Karate Club, including 20 from Andover, and over 200 students from the Independent Karate School in Nashua.

The Andover students are particularly excited about this event, because they have been chosen to develop a special Tae Kwon Do Demonstration for the 1000+ spectators.

The tournament consists of three events; First, Forms or Kata, where a person demonstrates their technical ability by performing a pre-described series of offensive and defensive moves against an imaginary opponent. Second is Breaking, where multiples of 1" pine boards or 2" concrete blocks are broken with a variety of techniques, demonstrating the amount of power a person can generate. Sparring or free-fighting is the third event, demonstrating a persons' overall skills in the practice application of technique.

Because the Tournament Directors feel that placing first, second or third, is not the only indication of success, participation trophies are presented to all who enter. To insure fairness, all events are divided by age and belt rank.

Tae Kwon Do classes are held every Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall at 10 Brooke St., Andover. Visitors are welcome.

Important Contributor At Plymouth

Denise Doran of Andover High School has been an important contributor to the 1987 Plymouth State College Panther women's soccer team, which has been New England's top rated Division III team so far this season.

Doran, daughter of Dennis and Barbara Doran of Andover, is a defender.

Coach Phil Rowe's defending New England NCAA Division III champions are hoping to gain a berth in November's New England Regional Tournament. A victory in the regional would allow PSC to advance to the national semifinals, a feat they accomplished in 1986 when they made it to the national championship game before losing 1-0 to the University of Rochester.

Three In A Row For West

By S. Muffin

The defense of the Andover West freshmen football team, led by Ryan Beal's three sacks, fumble recovery and 10 tackles, set the pace as they easily defeated Wilmington 35-0 last Friday.

West won the toss and chose to kickoff. The defense then did the job as Wayne Henderson, Terry Retelle, Will Lowery and Beal stuffed Wilmington on three straight downs and was forced to punt.

The high powered offense of West then went into action. On their first play from scrimmage, Brett Hammond took the handoff from Matt Perry and scampered through a huge hole created by Joey Marinaro, John Benson and Eric Greenstein. Hammond didn't stop until he reached the endzone 55 yards later. He then added his first of five kicked extra points. (Hammond's streak of kicked extra points now stands at 11.)

After another fine defensive effort, the offense went into action again. This drive featured the passing of Perry and receiving of Joe Iarrobino and Hammond, the big play being a 40-yard pass from Perry to Hammond that brought the pigskin down to the two-yard line. Craig DerTrainian then took the handoff from Perry and blasted into the endzone for the score. Hammond added the extra point.

Wilmington was forced to punt after the defense put on another clinic to start the second quarter, with Beal again leading the charge and Sean Veasy hitting the Wilmington players. During practice this past week, Coach Carney put in a new scheme on punt defense which paid off as Iarrobino received the kick and streaked down the left sideline for 65 yards and six points. Hammond made the kick and it was 21-0 with only nine minutes elapsed in the game.

On its next possession, Wilmington did not hold on to the ball for long as Bryan Smith cut across the middle, snared the football and returned it 15 yards. Immediately after, Iarrobino hit a streaking Chris Davis down the left sideline for a 35-yard touchdown and Hammond was there for the extra point.

Veasy thwarted Wilmington's attempt to get on the scoreboard with a nifty interception of a pass thrown over the middle. Hammond was given the ball on successive possessions as he made up the 45-yard gap from the point of interception to the goal line, falling inches short as time ran out in the half.

Assistant Specialist Coach Lucia Derba provided a rousing pep talk at the half, encouraging the team to work for the shutout. The defensive unit stormed onto the field and, under the direction of Kelly, continued to shut down Wilmington's offense. Also providing support was the defensive secondary which is under the direction of injured Andover High School varsity performer Andy McIntire. His corps continually shut down the outside and provided the defense on the long pass plays. Jeff Foley and Andy Brent, who had a fierce hit to cause the fumble that Beal recovered, played outstanding games at cornerback and Matt Orlando was solid at safety.

No points were scored in the third quarter. Lembo, who had five receptions in this quarter, made some nifty runs after receiving the ball. Kevin Ring had some electrifying runs behind the blocking of Nikos Messina.

The final scoring came in the fourth quarter as Perry capped a 70-yard drive with a 25-yard scramble into the endzone, keeping Wilmington's defenders at bay with his constant threat of throwing the ball while on this run. Hammond closed the scoring with his final extra point of the game.

West is now 3-2 and will host Lowell (also 3-2) Friday at the high school field at 3:30 p.m.

Harriers Stay Undefeated

The Warrior boys' cross-country team remained undefeated at home with a 21-34 win over Tewksbury. Glenn Harrison was Andover's best and overall runner with a time of 16:39 over the 3.1 mile course. Andover runners in the top ten were: Nathan Sullivan, third, 16:48; Wayne Buschman, fourth, 16:59; Jon Bicknell, fifth, 17:14; Chuck Hurley, seventh, 17:26.

Andover's record is now 5-3.

Donahue, who was born and grew up in Lawrence, comes from a family of teachers. Her cousin, Abby Condon, was at Lawrence High School for almost 50 years, and rose to be its assistant principal. Two other cousins, Mary Barry and Beatrice Condon, also taught in the Lawrence school system.

"When my sister went to be a nurse, everyone said, 'How awful!'"

When Donahue's aspirations to the medical profession fell through, she happened upon teaching as another way to help people. After working at East Junior High for approximately 15 years, she moved to West, and leaving her Andover teaching position for good was very hard.

"I got my courage up in July and went to the school and didn't see any cars, so I went the next day. Finally I called (Principal William Hart) and made an appointment."

He thought she was just retiring from the Sunshine Committee,

For Those Of Us Who Are Older

By Dorothy M. Winn

Ghosts and goblins will roam the halls of the Andover Senior Center on Monday, Nov. 2, in celebration of the annual Council on Aging Halloween Party. Tickets are on sale through Friday, Oct. 30, at 4 p.m. The cost of $2 includes a ham dinner, music by Chet Harnden and his one-man band, prizes and surprises for all. Costumes are optional, but add to the fun.

Remember, the deadline for registration for the November 16 cheese distribution is Friday, Nov. 6, at 4 p.m. You must register for each cheese distribution date. Andover residents 60 and older interested in receiving free commodity foods should call 470-3830.

When was the last time you had your blood pressure checked? Andover public health nurses conduct free blood pressure screenings every Wednesday from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the senior center. The Andover Health Department holds mini-clinics providing blood testing, urinalysis, weight and health counseling on Tuesdays at sites throughout Andover. The next mini-clinic will be Tuesday, Nov. 10, at Stowe Court from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Call 470-3800, ext. 255, for an appointment.

A makeup flu clinic is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 4, from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at the senior center. If you are an Andover resident age 60 or older or chronically ill and were unable to attend last week's flu clinic, you should mark November 4 on your calendar.

It's not too late to make an appointment for fuel assistance. Applications will be taken at the senior center on Friday, Oct. 30. Call 470-3830 for an appointment. Applicants need a copy of their most recent fuel bill and copies of social security or pension checks. Single person households with an income below $9,380, or two-person households with incomes below $12,670 are eligible. Applications made after October 30 must be made at the Greater Lawrence Community Action Council in Lawrence. Call the energy program at 686-3915 for further information.

Atty. Paul Twomey will be the speaker on Tuesday, Nov. 3, at the regular meeting of Andover's Alzheimer's support group at the senior center from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. His topic will be on protecting your assets. Andover's Alzheimer's support group meets the first and third Tuesday of every month.

Are you responsible for the care of an older friend or relative? Do you find yourself confined to the house due to the need to provide companionship and supervision to an elder person? The Andover Council on Aging can provide a break for you. The Andover Adult Day Care program is a professionally supervised program which offers a schedule of daily activity and supportive care for elderly and handicapped individuals according to their physical, emotional and social needs. The program provides a specialized program at the senior center Monday through Friday for a nominal fee. For further information, call 470-3800, ext. 205.

Upcoming trips of the Council on Aging for Andover residents and guests include: Rockettes Christmas show at Radio City Music Hall, Nov. 17, $5; Museum of Fine Arts in Boston to view Andrew Wyeth's Helga collection with lunch in the West Wing restaurant, Dec. 3, $35; Trapp Family Lodge for a Christmas feast, Dec. 6-7, $110/twin, $125/single; old fashioned Christmas celebration at the Lowell Hilton with buffet dinner and big band entertainment, Dec. 14, $15.

A special thanks is extended to the sponsors, golfers and volunteers who made the first annual Council on Aging Golf Tournament a success. More than $4,000 was raised which will be used to purchase Lifeguard units to help expand Andover's personal emergency response system.

J.V. Soccer Results

Andover 2 - Tewksbury 1

Andover played Tewksbury for the third and final time this season and won 2-1. The first half was evenly played with Tewksbury taking a 1-0 lead.

Andover controlled the game better in the second half. A rebound put in by John Mattola tied the game. Scott Eggert put in the winning goal, assisted by Kevin Murphy.

In their prior games, Andover had a 1-1 tie and a 3-2 win.

Andover 4 - St. John's Prep 2

In a very physical and well played game by both teams, Andover won 4-2.

Andover tallied twice in the first half on goals by Chris Merrill, assisted by Scott Clementi, and Dave Ahouse, assisted by Wes Brazeale.

St. John's scored off a direct kick early in the second half. Clementi answered with a goal, assisted by Dave Edwards, and an unassisted goal by Merrill. St. John's came back late in the game with its second goal. Strong team play by the offense and defense allowed Andover to maintain their unblemished record.

Andover 2 - Chelmsford 0

Andover played a much improved Chelmsford team for the second time this season. Chris Merrill scored, assisted by Chris Eggert and Eggert scored, assisted by Lewis.

Fine goalkeeping by Mike Sintros preserved the shutout, his fourth of the season.

nahue, she said. She would have to fill out 30-or 40-page educational reports for each student.

"In April, I'd spread them all out on the floor, like this," and she waves her hand over the entire span of her living room floor, past the chair with Andover's town seal which she got for her 40th teaching anniversary last year.

Donahue was honored again this month at a reception in her honor at West. During the reception, "Memory Lane," a glassed-in walk way, was dedicated to the teacher.

Now that she's officially retired, Donahue hasn't stopped doing what she loves completely. She started a part-time job at the Cerebral Palsy Association of the Merrimack Valley Area on Ballard Road in Lawrence, where she teaches language and math and helps out at lunchtime.

"They are very handicapped children. It's hard because some have very little speech; some are in wheelchairs," she said.

The association is a way of "weaning myself away" from teaching, Donahue said. "I couldn't stay at home. Maybe the day will come when I can, but I like (working at the association). I'm glad I'm there."

Donahue has a realtor's license, but that didn't appeal to her as much as teaching again.

"My time teaching was very, very enjoyable," she said. "My niece always says—she's been teaching for 17 years—I'll never get to 40," but I tell her it will go by fast. As they say, "Time goes by fast when you're having fun."

Garden In The Woods

Garden in the Woods Gift Shop, Hemmenway Road, Framingham, will be open Tuesday through Sunday in November from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Everyone visiting the gift shop during November will receive a discount on all items except books.

Carbone Smoothly Switches To Collegiate Soccer

By Rick Harrison

Former Andover High School varsity soccer standout Steve Carbone has made a smooth transition to the collegiate soccer field at Eckard College in St. Petersburg, Florida.

He was a three-year starter and star center-forward for the Golden Warriors between 1981 and 1983.

Carbone led the Merrimack Valley Conference in scoring as a sophomore and junior, finished second to Tewksbury's Armand Dias his senior year and is believed to be the all-time leading scorer at Andover High with 54 career goals (21 as a senior).

He was captain as a senior and in each of his three years Andover won the MVC championship and qualified for the Eastern Mass. Division I tournament.

"He was the most natural scorer we've ever had," stated veteran Andover High coach Dave Amundsen. "I honestly didn't believe there was such a thing as a natural goalscorer and I haven't seen a high school player with that same ability before or since."

"Every team we played knew he was the center of our offense. They covered him like a blanket, double-teamed him and shadowed him and

Harvesting

Harvesting is under-way for those crisp and crunchy carrots, parsnips and turnips available at roadside farm stands, farmers' markets and local supermarkets.

The New England climate is well suited to the cultivation of parsnips. They are planted in the spring and harvested after the first frost in the fall as well as during the winter or early the next spring.

Parsnips require a long, cool growing season, as they are strictly a winter vegetable. Their flavor is not fully developed until it has been exposed to a temperature near freezing. At low temperatures, starch gradually changes to sugar. When properly cooked, parsnips have a sweet, nutty flavor.

marked him. But he still scored the goals under all that pressure. He wasn't super fast, especially quick or that gifted an athlete, but he got the job done," noted Amundsen.

The 6'2", 170-pounder prepped one year at Brewster Academy in Maine.

Eckerd coach Jim DiNobile has switched Carbone to defense where he has played exceptionally well and still managed to stick in a goal here and there. He most recently scored a goal in Eckerd's 5-0 romp over St. Leo's.

"It doesn't surprise me that Steve's playing defense," said Amundsen. "Another of our top scorers in recent years, Scott Wilkins, is doing the same for Muhlenberg. The competition gets tougher at each level and defense is apparently where they needed Steve most."

In the Mediterranean area, umbrellas were initially used as sunshades even though they weighed about 4 lbs. and were made of whale bones and oiled cloth.

in 1854, is a $300 million, FDIC-insured bank headquartered in Peabody. It provides business and personal banking services to customers on the North Shore through its four branch offices and a loan center in Peabody. The bank recently opened a loan center in Andover, also at 77 Main St., to begin to better serve its Merrimack Valley customers. Its new branch office will offer customers in this area the opportunity to conduct all their banking business at one convenient location.

"I am confident that Warren Five's Andover Center office will be most successful," commented O'Sullivan, "and, more importantly, that the association of the Andover community and Warren Five Cents Savings Bank will be a positive one for all concerned."

Apples

Scientists say people have been eating an apple a day for at least two-and-a-half million years. Charcoal remains of apples have been found in the ruins of European Stone Age villages. Early American colonists brought apples seeds and apple trees with them from England. They dried their apples or used them to make cider and apple butter.

BUSINESS PROFILES

Marilyn Markham and Wendy Reynolds, co-owners, enjoying a brief moment of relaxation.

Reynolds & Markham: Interior Designers

Wendy Reynolds and Marilyn Markham, have just celebrated the first anniversary of their establishment, Reynold & Markham, located on the second floor at 90 Main St., Andover. Now, don't be thrown off by having to climb a flight of stairs! Not only is it good exercise, but you will be fascinated when you step into this very unique shop. The custom-painted finishes and fine home furnishings create a background of their selectively-chosen merchandise.

You will find everything from country hand-crafts to fine Herend china. French paisley fabrics are sold by the yard, needlepoint pillows line the sofa and animal garden ornaments are in every corner. French lamps, ceramic cookware from Austria, English wall brackets and flower holders add a continental flavor to the collection.

Wendy Reynolds, owner of the eight year old design firm Cheever House, is a veteran of five showhouses, the most recent the 1987 Junior League Showhouse where she designed the kitchen. Her work has been published several times in national magazines.

Marilyn Markham has a list of credits to her name as well. She travels all over the East Coast as a consultant and painter. Her talent with color, design and faux finishes allows her to work with many decorators. Her designs are always developed with the client in mind. Commissions have ranged from private homes to offices and faux finish accents for restaurants.

Marilyn has been published in several national publications and appeared on television. Most recently the Boston Herald did a three-page article on her diversity of style which is on display in the shop.

Don't miss this truly unique corner of Andover. Reynolds and Markham is open daily, except Sunday. Telephone 475-4931. Olga Jenkins-Price

Rick Coco and Priscilla Hunt

Century 21 The Hunt Agency, Inc.: Pacesetters

Co-owners Peter & Priscilla Hunt and Rick Coco were the proud recipients of the highly coveted "Century 21 Pacesetter Award" for the second quarter of 1987. As the top producer in the Andovers for the quarter, the Hunt Agency was among a select group of offices in the New England region cited by Century 21 of New England, Inc.

The Agency is also excited about recently acquiring additional office space at 522 Chickering Rd., North Andover, which will almost double their existing office area. According to Peter Hunt, plans are in the works to renovate their existing office area to integrate with the upgraded new accommodations. Their plans include a beautiful new reception area, two conference rooms, an expanded broker work area and a computer area for their three systems, including a new Hoeywell-Bull computer. "The new computer and its programs," said Priscilla "were designed specifically for Century 21 offices with direct input from Century 21 brokers all across the country." Added Rick Coco, "No other real estate franchises or independents have the capabilities afforded us through Century 21. It's what keeps us on the leading edge of the real estate industry.

In keeping with their expansion plans, Hunt Agency has recently hired two more full time secretaries, a move which will allow them to better serve their clients' needs. Helen Bebirian, a salesperson with Hunt, has organized a major telemarketing program to be used in conjunction with the office computer. Radio advertising is becoming a major component of their advertising campaign, also.

Call the Hunt Agency, Inc., at 688-4868 or stop by their offices at 522 Chickering Rd., Rtes 125 & 133, North Andover and meet the Pacesetters.

SHORT OR LONG-TERM LOAN?

In the old days, when you financed your home with a fixed rate mortgage, it was a long-term loan - period - usually around 20 or 30 years. However in today's super market selection of mortgages, even the fixed rate variety has a choice. A major fork in the road now involves the term (length of loan) of fixed rate mortgages. Do you choose a long term, fixed-rate loan or a short-term, early ownership variety that usually runs in the 15-year range?

The principle of leverage separates the two borrowing philosophies. If you want to borrow as much as possible for as long as possible, for the lowest monthly payments, you want the leverage and should select a 30-year loan. On the other hand, shorter term, fixed rate mortgages can achieve significant savings in total interest payouts and faster equity buildup.

Those who can afford the slightly higher monthly payments would be wise to consider the shorter term program and its money-saving, earlier retirement of the debt.

PLUMBING

The plumbing is one of your home's more mysterious systems. Most of the pipes are hidden in the wall, and when you have a problem, you'll probably have to call in a plumber. Because plumbers charge hefty rates, prospective buyers are frequently frightened away by evidence of leaky pipes, ceiling stains below shower pans, or antiquated bathroom fixtures.

If you're planning to sell, it's a good idea to make sure your plumbing problems are solved before you place your home on the market. After the plumber finishes his work, you should take care of any cosmetic damage that leaks may have caused. Are plumbing repairs cost-effective? Most sales agreements contain clauses calling for all systems, including plumbing, to be in working order. If you have a problem, you'll probably have to repair it before settlement in any case. Doing it ahead of time eliminates plumbing as an issue in the property's sale. Having your plumbing in top condition will also make your home seem well cared for, and this makes it more attractive to potential buyers.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professional at Realty USA / Schründer Real Estate are ready to serve you. Call us at 685-5000 or drop by our offices at 73 Chickering Road, North Andover.

ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

To Dedicate New Playfields In Memory Of Warren Deyermund

This year's annual Veterans' Day observances will be highlighted by the dedication of the new playfields in West Andover to the memory of Warren Charles Deyermund, a life resident of Andover, who was killed during the Vietnam conflict on July 14, 1969.

Deyermund, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Deyermund, graduated from Andover High School and was sent to Vietnam shortly after his 20th birthday on September 21, 1968.

He received a commendation of merit for his service during the war, and was wounded in action on two occasions prior to his death, for which he received the Purple Heart.

The new fields are located off Chandler Road at the site of the former town landfill and near the West Andover Fire station. The fields were developed by the town over the past few years.

Dedication ceremonies will include the placing of a plaque on the flagpole noting the memory of the young Vietnam casualty.

The dedication of the field will take place at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 11, as part of the town's Veterans' Day exercises. The American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars participants will meet at the Veterans' Headquarters at 9 a.m. to form a Firing Squad and Color Guard.

Following the dedication of Deyermund Field, the Veterans will conduct a Memorial Service at Spring Grove Cemetery at 11 a.m., with the Korean and Vietnam Veterans' Services to be held at the Ballardvale Green at 11:30.

Among the participants in the dedication of the Deyermund Memorial Field are the Greater Lawrence Musicians Union band Local 372, Police Sergeant William MacKenzie, U. S. Army Major Robert Eldridge, Andover Selectman Chairman Gerald Silverman, the Clan McPherson Bag Pipe Band, Clarence Johnson, Commander of the American Legion and the Legion/VFW/police department firing squad.

The participants will be joined by John Doherty of the VFW and George Milne, Commander of the VFW Post 2128 for the memorial services at Spring Grove Cemetery.

The Ballardvale ceremony will feature the West Junior High School band, Major Janie Maddox of the U. S. Air Force, the West Junior High School choir and Wilfred Pelletier, an ex-POW who will raise the POW/MIA flag.

All participants are invited to a buffet luncheon at the Andover Lodge of Elks following the services.

Seifert

property divided by the latest census) is much higher than the state average, which means, Paul stated, "we receive virtually the same amount of state aid each year, regardless of what we spend."

Paul said he did not have an estimate of how large the FY 89 budget would be in total dollars. "We're still waiting on our population figures," he said, "we won't have all the numbers down for several weeks."

The assistant superintendent explained the school department's new computers do not show up under expenses in its budget because "that falls under 'debt service' in the town's budget.

Debt service refers to any outstanding bonds owed by the town, he stated.

Andover's 1988 school budget is $18,345,720, $14.6 million of which goes toward salaries. "Our salaries are a little higher than most areas," Seifert commented. "But I don't apologize for that. It's time we gave the schools a better shot to be more competitive (in wage levels)."

The Budget Committee will meet next month to review the school system's "Master Plan" and to "plug dollars in" for the preliminary budget, Seifert said. Another meeting, not as yet scheduled, will be devoted to an analysis of the preliminary budget.

Getting Involved

Andover Residents Take Interest In Town Government

By Lewis C. Howe

Whether it's a town-sanctioned study committee, an organization of concerned neighbors or just a group of people with a common interest, Andover residents love to get involved with the goings-on in their town.

"We have so many volunteer committees, there's always an opportunity for someone who's really interested to provide their time and skills" said Anthony Torrissi, town finance and budget director.

In addition to his duties for the town, Torrissi is a member of both the Finance Committee and the Cable Television Advisory Committee. The input of these and other town-sanctioned committees, he said, "play an important role in decisions made by town government."

Torrissi cited the cable advisory group as an example of volunteer committees that "quietly get things done" by acting as a citizens' liaison to Heritage Cablevision. The committee, he explained, "has a close working relationship" with the cable outlet, enabling residents to communicate any problems they might have with their television service to a group that the company finds receptive.

The Cable Television Advisory Committee, Torrissi stated, "helps address minor problems for customers before they become major problems." This is a similar goal to those of the other 25 or so town-appointed committees.

Torrissi estimated between 100 and 150 residents sit on at least one of these committees, and advised those wishing to get involved to make their presence known.

Most candidates for spots on volunteer bodies are chosen from a "talent bank" consisting of returned applications filled out by residents before town meetings each spring (for application see page 15).

"The town mails out the forms," Torrissi explained, "and since the appointments are made at the end of the fiscal year in June, the responses we get during the period between April Town Meeting and early June usually get considered for appointments."

Other cases, such as job transfers or conflict of interest, will create an opening on a committee the town will seek to fill from the talent bank pool. At present, Torrissi said, this pool is "very small," owing to the fact that "Andover as a town is so active in so many other areas" such as religious, educational and fraternal organizations.

Parents of Andover schoolchildren are especially active in their Parent Teacher Organizations. Dr. Kenneth Seifert, superintendent of schools, said "the PTOs work very closely with the individual schools. If you want to get something done as part of your school's community, join a PTO."

PTOs, Seifert noted, also select representatives to school budget committees, whose members work with the school administrations to design school budgets. They also seat parents on school improvement councils, and parents share as well in the process of selecting new administrators "from the level of principal on up," Seifert said.

The superintendent encouraged parents to attend school committee meetings, and raise concerns with the board. The committee's receptiveness to parental comments "depends on the point to be made" Seifert stressed. "I have seen individual parents make a suggestion that the committee has adopted. Depending on what the suggestion is, it may or may not be accepted."

It is important, Seifert continued, "that people speak factually, rather than emotionally," in order to get their points across. The superintendent also encouraged parents to communicate with their child's school administrators and teachers, something which he said "tends to taper off" as the child gets older. "There is better parental involvement at the elementary level," he remarked.

One parents' group that goes all out for its cause is the Andover High School Football Parents organization. Pam Carleton, publicity director for the group, pointed out the parents are responsible for producing the football team's program, sponsoring "nights" for groups such as the cheerleaders and the junior football players, and for dispensing all those frankfurters and cups of hot chocolate Warrior fans consume on Friday nights at the Eugene V. Lovely Field.

"People may not realize it's the parents, not the school, that's responsible for putting these things together," Carleton stated. The football parents are currently looking for more involvement from the parents of junior and sophomore class athletes.

Community Development and Planning

Nancy Jeton is the town's principal planner in the Department of Community Development and Planning. She is responsible for advising the Planning Board on all new buildings in town, rehabilitation of old structures, creation of new policies and overseeing planning studies and subcommittees.

Steve Colyer is the town's physical planner, dealing mostly with subdivisions, housing and enforcements of the Planning Board's rules and regulations. He is also the town's fair housing coordinator and conservation agent.

Planner Laura Hill deals predominantly with commercial and industrial development in the town and acts as a liaison to the Zoning Board of Appeals when necessary.

Government

"We desperately need them," she said. "We are parents of kids on the team, and when the seniors graduate, we're no longer a part of it. We will need people for next year."

Another common means of getting involved in town is through one of the many "neighborhood associations" available. Virtually every neighborhood has one, from Shawsheen to West Andover to Ballardvale to central Andover. According to Selectman Gail Ralston, some of these groups have been holding joint meetings, which she said makes perfect sense.

"Neighborhood concerns are the same no matter what part of town you are in," Ralston said. "The issues aren't just housing and comprehensive permits, they also include roads, sewer, schools—all the general 'quality of life' issues that affect everyone."

Ralston announced last week that the Academy Manor Nursing Home is providing free meeting space for neighborhood groups who too often must "scramble for meeting space." The manor will also make free coffee available at meetings, something that could come in handy during a lengthy debate.

Torrissi said he was impressed with the "level of reasonable, responsive, creative debate" that occurs when volunteer groups meet. "It's very rare when you see knock-down drag-out fights like in some other communities" he quipped.

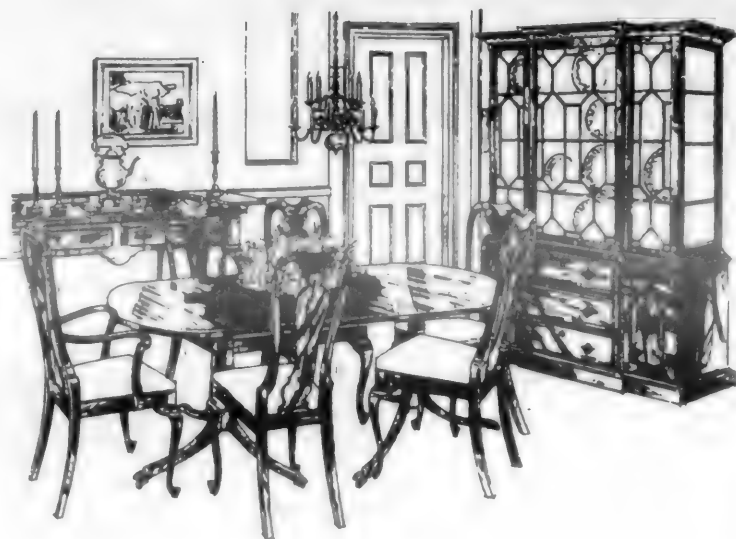

"People put a lot of time into their (committee) work," Torrissi stated, "and they want to have their efforts rewarded."
